Mineral Resources Issues 2009-2010 Harvest Report

Mineral Resources International, Inc. (MRI) has announced that its 2009-2010 mineral harvest is complete, and by all indications, has proven to be a superb harvest. "In my years of experience, the 2009 season was an unusual season," stated Corey Anderson, Managing Partner of NorthShore Limited Partnership, MRI's exclusive supplier of all-natural, food-grade ionic minerals. "Due to heavy rains and cool, mild weather, which extended over a month longer than normal, we were not able to begin our evaporation process until July. However, despite the delay, we're very thrilled with both the quantity and quality of the mineral harvest. This harvest yield is only slightly smaller than last year's yield, but still easily sufficient to carry us through the next season with enough and to spare, even while projecting for healthy growth." New Podcast Available: Why One-Dose Mineral Supplements are Insufficient

A new audio file of a recent interview with Val Anderson, MRI's Director of Sales and Marketing, and Jeff Burke, host of the radio program "Stay Healthy" is now available for customers of MRI to download and listen to. In this latest interview, Val discusses the importance of minerals in energy, mental clarity, and well being and why one-dose (or those popular one-a-day) mineral supplements are insufficient in meeting people's needs for minerals and trace elements. The best way for people to ensure that they are getting the optimal mineral nutrition their bodies need, it's best to spread one's intake of minerals throughout the day. This is a very interesting discussion and one in which you are sure to learn something new! To listen to the mp3 audio file, go to <http://www.mineralresourcesint.com/docs/login.php> Users can log in, download the mp3 file, and listen to the interview. You can also contact your MRI sales representative to obtain a CD copy of the interview.
